About this film

Here is the account of what war did to the children of Europe and what is being done to help them. An army of 60 million sick and starving children are fighting for existence in Europe's shattered cities. Homeless, hungry, with their schools in ruins, many look back to the "good old days" of fascist ceremony and totalitarian discipline. No wonder a scrap of bread is worth more than its weight in paper money!

Food, clothing and medical assistance are arriving daily from the sharing nations. Camps have been set up to care for the homeless and to give the first steps of schooling. Yet this is only a beginning in the huge task of saving the suffering little children who tomorrow will face our own children as citizens of the world.
